the west. Dry and parching weather has out short crops of all kinds, including Under these circumstances it is fortunal Under these circumstances it is fortunate that the surplus at 'the West is sufficient to supply the dediciencies of Old and New England, in almost every article. Western farmers, too, are assured at least fair prices and certain markets.

One of the most complete failures at the West last season was potatoes. The extent of this may be inferred from the fact that the prevailing retail price in this market tor several months was $3.80 per bushel. Potatoes were imported largely at at Pittsburgh of the new association of Western rolling mill proprietors. It was understood to be a secret meeting, and every precaution was taken to keep ou

There is only one of our staple, products now about which there is an uncertainty. There can not be a full crop of cora, but it may not be heavily short. Kansas reports a crop of 200,000,000 bushels, Kentucky will secure a large crop, and at the South the yield is largely above the average. In Indiana, Ohio and Illinois every week improves the prospects and reduces the percentage below an average; but so much depends upon September that it is too soon to speak with any, degree of certainty. Early frosts are what are now most feared. If these shall not occur, there will be a crop, taking the corn States, through and freely to a newspaper man. We are assured by a Wheeling manufacturer who was present that the following account of what was done at the meeting is substantially correct. We therefore append it, as fol

the most part with a discussion of the sit-uation with reference to the strike. Re-ports were heard from the various districts, nd it appeared that there was even ronger determination to resist the new cale than was manifested before. At the scale than was manifested before. At the same time, some of the delegates did not attempt to disguise the fact that they were losing money by remaining idle, and were anxions to take advantage of any means for resuming work without violating their ngreement not to sign the scale. "Outside districts," said one of the reporter's informants, the senior member of one of the best known firms in the Pittsburgh district, "seem particularly bitter—Wheeling particularly—against signing the scale or being subjected to annoyances by mill committees. The Wheeling delegates reported that they would insist on including the South, pushing well up to an average.

Taking the crops all together, the farmers of the West never had greater cause for thankfuiness. There, has, been in every sense, a year of great abundance; and added to all this is the assurance, by reason of the exhaustion of last year's products and the deficiencies in Old England and in New England, of good prices. ported that they would insist on

"Was that reported officially as the action of the Wheeling manufacturers?"

"I believe they came to that conclusion at their last local meeting," was the reply. "Yes, it was reported in behalf of the delegation by one of their number, and anyhow represents the policy they have prepared to pursue."

pared to pursue."

"Were there any signs of weakening?
Did any of the delegation seem anxious to make a start by signing the scale?"

"No; nobody favored signing the scale at present. There were several that talked of starting to work, but not signing the scale. There was not a single one that talked of agreeing to that. There are several ready to start, and I would not be surprised if they should do so before long, but it will be with non-union men. They will ignore the association, refuse to sign any scale and refuse to recognize any mill committee, dealing with the men as individuals. Yes, several of them are located in Pittsburgh, but I don't care to give any names."

"Did it appear from the discussion that the mills were anxious to start?" Does the market show enough improvement to justify them all in going to work?

"Some were more anxious to resume than others. Among the manufacturers of bar and other grudes of iron that go into the general market the owas a feeling of indifference. If the strikes were settled, some of them would go to work and others would not. But nearly all which manufacture specialties and extras would light their fires meain. The market shows no

TALKING OVER A NEW MOVE. "Were any overtures made by the

"Were any overtures made by the Amalgamated Association for a settlement of the strike, of was any action taken in that direction?"
"None whatever. The association only realizated its former action against granting any increase in the scale. In my opinion, if the Amalgamated Association does not, within a short time, agree to go to work at the old prices and abolish the mill committee, the mills will start to work outside of it. Several delegates advocated side of it. Several delegates advocated taking such action, and I think it is very probable that it will be tried before long.

taking such action, and I think it is very probable that it will be tried before long."
"You mean a concerted movement against the union?"
"You, that is what they talked about. The plan is to have the mills all over the country to unite in declaring that they would employ none but non-union men, or, what amounts to the same thing, require their men to go to work without having the scale signed and refusing to recognize any mill committee. The Mill Committee seemed to be obnoxious. It was argued that if they should unite to do that they could not but succeed, and judging from the tone of the discussion. I shouldn't wonder to see it done, provided, of course, the Amalgamated Association does not make a settlement itself. That can be done on no other terms than last year's prices, and even then that may not be obtained at Wheeling."

The other delegates who were spoken to expressed the same sentiment, the words of one seeming to express the general opinion of all that a sentiment was farther off than ever before. The interview above is perhaps us close a representation of the sentiments of the more conservative element as could be obtained.

The talk about the strike, although the

The talk about the strike, although the most interesting part of the proceedings occupied considerably less time than the preparations for the meeting of the National Association of Iron and Steel Manu tional Association of Iron and Steel Manufacturers at Cresson, in September. A programme was blocked out, and a committee consisting of John W. Chalfant, of Allegheny; J. M. Wells, of Youngstown, O.; P. L. Kumberly, of Sharon, Pa.; J. D. DuBois, of Wheeling; Charles Ridgeley, of Springfield, Ill.; George L. Rice, of New Castiq Pa., and W. S. Armitage, of Detroit, was appointed to form another committee to represent the various classes of iron and steel manufacturers before the Tarili Commission.

The meeting adjourned about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In the evening there was a meeting of a committee of hoop iron manufacturers at the Monongahela House in reference to the presentation of the hoop iron question before the Tariff Commission.

A conference was held at the same place between President Jarrett and Secretary Martin, of the Amalgamated Association, and a number of manufacturers, but it was of an informal nature. Whatever conclusions were arrived at, nothing of an official character, could be done.

It is believed that the proceedings of the day may have a very decisive influence on the strike, although no action of a special character was taken.
